April has been a month of Festivals starting from Mahavir Jayanthi, Easter, Tamil New Year's Day, Bai Sakhi, Ambedkar-Jayanthi, Ramzan. Hope all of you celebrated the same and greeted your friends who celebrated these special occasions.

It was also a month of awareness starting from world Autism Awareness day on 2nd April raising the concerns of development issues in children - World Health day on 7th April to World Earth day on 22nd April. Children, Health, Earth are invaluable assets and need to be consciousness and find ways and avenues to exercise the responsibility to be excellent/responsible future ready professionals.

As I write this Newsletter, exams for CA Inter-

-mediate and Final is going on and I hope to see excellent results with multitude of students writing their Final becoming members and professional colleagues and those writing intermediate get into Final.

Coming to SICASA activities, to support students involved in Bank Audits, SICASA Team had a Bank Audit Virtual Seminar (Part - 3) by Past Chairman SIRC of ICAI CA. Dungar Chand U.Jain on the Topic- "Bank Audit Using Technology". Part 1 & 2 was conducted end March 23 by expert resource persons.

We are sure that the mentoring session by way of Half Day Seminar (How to Face CA Exams) for Students attempting May 2023 was useful to all of them.

As an innovative effort SIRC of ICAI had organized a campus visit for students from "The Pupil School". The event was hosted by our SICASA MC Team filled with fun and learning activities for students along with the Career Counselling session by the Regional Council Member CA. Rekha Uma Shiv.

The Month of April also saw one physical event of SICASA Orators Forum Series #60 on Excuse the Rumors - Introduce the Reason Called You by CA. Sethu Raman on 09th April 2023 followed by a Virtual Orators Forum meet on 16th April 2023.

Earth is our eternal mother who nourishes generations of us and to honour her, on the World Earth day falling every year on 22nd April 2023, the SICASA team along with volunteers organized a beach cleaning drive on 22nd April 2023. As my closing remark, I say "Take Care of yourself and the World around you! My dear Students".

-Lovingly Yours,
CA. Chengal Reddy Ramireddygari

A Daughter's Hymn.....

You gave me birth,
You are the purest soul on earth.
I can trust you without fear,
To me, You will always remain dear.
You made my life worth living,
You are very kind and loving.
You work day and night,

For me, you will always be right.
You fear for my safety,
Don't worry I will return home safely.
You taught me a b c,
You are such a blessing to me.
I'm lucky to have you,
You will always be true.

HOPE

Lived with the hope that life will change,
It changed, but into something strange .

While I'm waiting for a rainbow in the rain,
It turned into a hurricane, throwing me back into pain

It took the little happiness I own, and that's when I realized I'm left all alone.

The little faith for a single step in the direction of gain,
Disappeared with a mile journey towards pain.

As if I'm designed to live in pain,
Joy visits my life once in a long time.
Every dream I had ended up in despair,
Maybe, all I got is misfortune everywhere.

Still a ray of hope left deep inside my soul,
The only thing that keeps me strong in this whole.

I don't even understand what life has instore,
All I can wish is to walk through a joyful door.

April First –Voice of Betrayal

This is a story of me being pranked by my friends on April 1st which is literally April fool's day. It was basically a Saturday where we had no work to be done at the office so we all were playing 'stickman party' during which my phone started ringing and it was my colleague who was on study leave for his May exams. I picked up the call and he asked me to collect a parcel for which he had given the office address for the place of delivery. As I was going downstairs to collect the parcel, I was very excited to unbox the parcel and he was like "no...please don't do that i've brought that to gift it to someone", who's going to listen bro?...if I collect it I unbox it, no objections are allowed. I reached downstairs and there was a security guard standing there and he enquired, why I was standing confused. I then told him I've got a parcel to collect and was waiting for the delivery man. After waiting for like 3 minutes straight, I called and told him that I can't find any delivery man around, so then he asked me to wait till he called and enquired. Now it's been around 5 minutes and he called back and told me to walk a short distance to a hotel - "Nalanda" and he told me that the delivery man is standing in front of it. I walked there and I did not find anyone holding the parcel and waiting for me. I was confused and asked him to tell that delivery man, to give the parcel to the girl wearing a red dress. Now to the climax of the story, he told me to stand there and enjoy April fools day, ohh god dammit.....my weak brain cells was still processing and was realizing that this was all a prank.. This was going to embarrassing as I'm the prankster of my office and I've been pranked

So, I quietly walked back to the office and while I was waiting for the lift, the security guard I've seen earlier asked whether I got the parcel. It was that moment where I was confused, whether to tell the truth that I've been pranked or act as if the delivery man is going to take a while to get the parcel delivered. But suddenly I laughed and said this was all a prank...these kids at my office are taking leave from work for studying and actually what they do is pranking others and having fun. All the way upstairs I was realising how silly I was to believe this drama. My office is like a network where story spreads in the speed of lightning. Now everybody got a story to laugh at and I was like, it's okay as I was only trying to be helpful.. Being so helpful is my fault ah?. Personally as the main character of this story, I still laugh thinking about it.

Mantras of Long-lasting Success

“Man is born free but everywhere he is in chains”- so goes popular adage in English, Everyone aspires for success but have you ever felt that it comes easier to some than to others ? perhaps it's time for a new perspective ! start with this Mantras for success and watch how success comes to you with no stress

Find Your Inspiration :

An important dimension is to constantly be inspired . Look at the reasons why you are doing what you are doing and see the larger dimension of it, the contribution you make through every little thing you do in your life. Every action that human performed is contribution to some dimension of this world.

Be Equanimous and Exuberant :

To be successful in the world , what you fundamentally need is prowess of the mind and the body . if you want to harness the mind, one of the most important qualities is equanimity , your ability to use the mind is greatly reduced .another important quality is on the level of your energy – you need exuberance, both physiologically and internally.

Stop Fixing On Failure :

For a committed one , there is no such thing as failure. If you fall down 100 times in the day, it is 100 lessons learnt. If you commit yourself like this to creating what you really care for , your mind gets organized because the way you think is the way you feel . once your thought and emotions are organized, your energies and your very body will get organized and you are the creator in every way .

Reminiscences of Atom

Dear Atmii (Atom),

I still remember the day I brought you home from the street with your little paws and your cutest puppy face covered all over with ticks. I thought I would medicate and vaccinate you and leave you again on streets but who knew you would end up becoming the member of Dnyate Family. Thank you for imbibing discipline in me to mandatorily wake up at 5am for taking you on a walk. You made me a better person. You charmed all my friends who visited home.

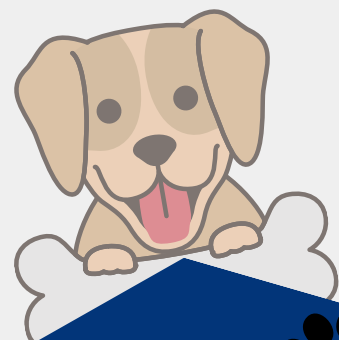

I cannot bring you back from the beautiful place you've gone but I am certain you must be happy there. I see your traces everywhere in the house, I hear you barking in my mind, and what to do with the permanent trace you've left on my heart?

I will remember our fights, I also remember you coming to the door wagging your tail when I come back home and that sweet pissed off face whenever I leave you alone at home. Time fades the memories but but our memories are too strong for that. We've learnt whatever you were here to teach us. I want you to remember us with a smile. Won't dare to say goodbye because I believe in soul-mates.
